Psychotherapy

Psychotherapy has been shown to have many benefits. Therapy often leads to better relationships, solutions to specific problems, significant reductions in feelings of distress, and greater insight into personal goals and values. As with any treatment modality, there are no guarantees of what you will experience.

Participation in Counseling/Psychotherapy:

I understand that for counseling to be most successful, I will need to be actively engaged and participate in my own healing and growth. Additionally, I understand the work that I do outside of therapy sessions will greatly impact my progress.

Risks of Counseling/Psychotherapy:

I understand counseling may feel challenging and difficult at times. Uncomfortable feelings and experiences may be addressed within counseling (in that I may feel anger, sadness, guilt, grief, loss, frustration, etc.). While progress may be happening, I may feel worse before I start to feel better. However, I ultimately get to decide what we discuss and work with. If I feel uncomfortable or not ready to discuss a particular issue at any point, this is perfectly fine.

I understand that email, faxing, or using a phone, especially a cell phone is not a confidential means of communication. I understand that George MacIlwinen, MA, LPC, CAC I, GEP, ACE-CPT provides non-emergency therapeutic services by scheduled appointments. Clients seen in outpatient psychotherapy are assumed to be responsible for their day-to-day functioning. If I may need additional or more intensive services, my therapist may refer me to another organization to receive extended services.

Consultation and Supervision:

I understand that it is ethical and common practice for psychotherapists to consult with other professionals or colleagues about issues that arise within therapy. My confidentiality will still be protected during consultation and supervision sessions. Signing this disclosure gives my psychotherapist permission to consult and seek supervision as needed to provide professional services to me as a client.
